Venice Council Oaks Final Set of Plans for Broadway Underpass

Plans for replacement of railings on McKinley bridge from the east approach to the main span at a cost approximating $80,000 were approved by the Venice city council Friday night.

At the same time the council approved the plans and specifications prepared by the Illinois Department of Public Works for construction of the Broadway underpass—a project of long standing that is expected to get under way this summer.

Council members authorized a bid call on the bridge rail project for May 29 and instructed City Atty. Harry Miller to file the bid documents.

The bridge rail plans were received from Hardisty & Hanover, New York engineers for the Venice-owned bridge.

New railings were installed on the west approach of the bridge two years ago at a cost of $140,000. Completion of the railings on the east approach will be held until the main span is replaced, which new railings must be installed. Work on that section is estimated to cost about $150,000.

Question Sewer Cost

Approval of the plans and specifications for the Broadway underpass project was given subject to resolving a question over financing of a section of sewer line.

Mayor John E. Lee said that language of specifications indicates the cost be borne by the city of Venice. He said he is in touch with the state to see if the state provides the sewer cost.

Industry, Business Join Clean Up Drive

Quad-City area industries and businesses plan a wide range of activities to participate in the annual Clean Up—Paint Up—Fix Up campaign sponsored by the Tri-Cities Chamber of Commerce.

The Tri-Cities Chamber of Commerce was reported to day as the campaign officially got under way.

A number of special projects including a general "housekeeping" cleanup, painting of loading docks, platforms and fences, inspection and repair of sidewalks, resurfacing of parking lots and other improvements were to be made by area industries, reports the chamber in connection with the chamber of commerce in connection with the drive.

The campaign will include roadside trash and rubbish pickups, paint up in city street department.

The trash pickup will continue throughout the two weeks of the drive, which is scheduled to end on May 18. Keith Toby, general chairman of the chamber of commerce campaign committee, said the chamber of commerce will be available only to haulers serving communities of Madison county.

The complaint charges that the resolution is not an amendment to the landfill ordinance but makes the ordinance contradictory, ambiguous and uncertain as to the ordinance provides.

The hearing was one of a series being held throughout the state on a report of the State Advisory Committee on Education in the Health Fields which recommended the establishment of medical and dental training programs by Southern Illinois University.

Quad-City area representatives involved in the hearings in support of the proposals included Randall Robertson, representing the Tri-Cities Chamber of Commerce; Sister Mary Agnes, administrator of St. Elizabeth Hospital; Dr. Felicia Koch, representing the medical profession; Dr. Albert Tritani, representing the dental profession, and Dr. James Hodges, manufacturer-manager of the Manufacturers Association of the Tri-Cities.

Endorsement of the proposal was expressed by the Madison-St. Clair County Dental Societies, the St. Clair County Medical Society, the commandant of Scott Air Force base Hospital, and the presidents of hospitals in Granite City, Belleville and Highland, and the chief of nursing services at Alton State Hospital.

Urge Training Need

Testimony emphasized the need for training facilities for dentists and physicians in southern Illinois and the urgent need of training facilities. Studies have shown the patient load of a doctor in southern Illinois is twice that of a doctor in the northern Illinois, with particular emphasis on the Madison-St. Clair county areas because of the density of population.

Democrats and other area hospital administrators voiced interest in working our teaching and clinical relationships with SIU in the event a medical curriculum is established.

Plaintiffs listed in the complaint are:

Disposal Service Co., John Pezold; Hauling Service, Artie Williams; Allien Trucking Co., Berite Trucking Co., Evans Brothers, Cooks Truck Line, Kirkwood Haulers, William Miller, Leo Abel and Lee Lee.

Other individuals named in the suit include: Mal Lingle, J. Martin, J. Hardt, C. Bassket, Williams, David Simegley, David Edwards, James Lee, Bill Gray, Richard James M. Burks, Bill McFarland, Bob J. Clinton, W. Fitzgerald, Richard Thomas and Arthur Please.

Trash Haulers Sue Area Need Of Medical School is Stressed

Missouri trash haulers and the MAL Landfill Corp. filed a complaint for declaratory judgment against Madison county and Jack Clifford, sanitation administrator in county circuit court. The plaintiffs in their suit to void the county's landfill ordinance and the controversial Killinger amendment.

The plaintiffs also seek an injunction to restrain Clifford from carrying out the provisions of the ordinance and resolution until their validity has been determined.

A resolution sponsored by Clifford, keeper of Collisville town hall last July 19, passed unanimously by the county board of supervisors, banned out-of-state haulers from dumping in county landfills.

The complaint attacks the landfill ordinance and a $100 fee for each vehicle per year used by out-of-state dumpers, as being invalid as regulation of lands and belongings of the state of the State Health Department, and that the county department is usurping state authority and regulating a constitutional question.

The plaintiffs questioned the validity and constitutionality of the ordinance and the resolution on several counts as being contrary to the Civil Practices Act.

The hearing was one of a series being held throughout the state on a report of the State Advisory Committee on Education in the Health Fields which recommended the establishment of medical and dental training programs by Southern Illinois University.

Quad-City area representatives involved in the hearings in support of the proposals included Randall Robertson, representing the Tri-Cities Chamber of Commerce; Sister Mary Agnes, administrator of St. Elizabeth Hospital; Dr. Felicia Koch, representing the medical profession; Dr. Albert Tritani, representing the dental profession, and Dr. James Hodges, manufacturer-manager of the Manufacturers Association of the Tri-Cities.

Endorsement of the proposal was expressed by the Madison-St. Clair County Dental Societies, the St. Clair County Medical Society, the commandant of Scott Air Force base Hospital, and the presidents of hospitals in Granite City, Belleville and Highland, and the chief of nursing services at Alton State Hospital.

Clean Up Trash Collections Begin

Special trash pickups in connection with the annual Clean Up—Paint Up—Fix Up campaign got under way in Granite City yesterday.

On Monday, May 18, the city street department will begin its weekly trash pickup schedule to end on May 18.

William Warfield, street superintendent, said today's pickups are being made in the West Granite area east of the railroad tracks from the north to southerly city limits. Work in that section is expected to be completed by Wednesday.

Beginning tomorrow, and for the remainder of this week, pickups will be made between the railroad tracks on the west side of the road east, from the point Nameoki road to Wilson Park, and including the East Granite area.

Throughout next week, starting Monday, May 13, city trucks will make pickups in the remainder of the city east of Nameoki road, starting in the ninth south and working south.

Warfield said it is impossible to provide a precise date for the start of the weekly trash pickup in any given area because the volume required to do the work can't be anticipated. He said he expects the West Granite pickups to be completed by Friday.

On Monday, May 13, city trucks will be used to make trash pickups along Nameoki road from the intersection of Wilson Park, and including East Granite.

Madison and Venice also will

Girl, 2, Falls from Car; Fractures Skull

Rhonda Mohon, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy E. Mohon, 4209 Maryville road, is in satisfactory condition after a fall from a moving automobile.

Mohon fell from a moving automobile while riding in the front seat, and her mother, Mrs. Mohon, 26, of Maryville, was admitted with a skull fracture early Thursday afternoon after tumbling from a moving automobile.

The child, who was riding with her mother, opened the car door and was spilled onto the roadway as Mrs. Mohon turned from Pontoon into Maryville.

Mohon, whose youngest son, a 10-month-old, was with her, stopped to aid the pair and his wife picked up the semi-conscious child, taking him home just a short block away. The father took her immediately to the local hospital.

8 DAYS WITHOUT A QUAD-CITY TRAFFIC FATALITY

Hoelscher in a statement before the board outlined in detail population studies that emphasize the importance of training facilities in southern Illinois. He said that in 1964 an SIU study showed the state of Illinois had 12,677 physicians for a ratio of 12.4 persons per physician.

But in 1964, in 31 southern Illinois counties however, there were 731 physicians for a ratio of 14.43 persons per physician. But he said, the ratio rose to 14.43 persons for each physician in Madison and St. Clair counties.

Hoelscher said that while the advisory report cannot be criticized for the recommendations it makes, it is subject to criticism, "for what it does."

A raid was staged about 11:30 p.m. Saturday by Venice police on a home at 1037 Bassett street, where Cora Nicholson, Georgia Clifton Kemp, 49, was charged with illegal sale of liquor.

The six raiding officers, who had a search warrant, said they found a fully equipped bar in the basement and about seven patrons.

Also taken into custody was the barmaid, Cora Nicholson, 49, of 309 South Fourth street. She was charged with illegal sale of liquor.

Officers said they encountered difficulties in the raid because the bar was filled with beer and liquor. The place did not have a city liquor license, police said.

The women were released to appear for hearings May 22.

MORE ABOUT Area Need

not seen." He claimed the northern area would benefit more from the expansion of the medical than would southern Illinois where the need of more doctors and dentists is much more critical.

"I do not believe that anyone in southern Illinois will respond to this report that it makes recommendations which will aid the training of physicians in Illinois in general, and particularly in the northern Illinois area in particular," Hoelscher said.

"I think people in southern Illinois will resist this report en masse if the Provisional Draft for public health services is adopted. The final document with no further recommendations for actions to solve the physician shortage problem in southern Illinois is unacceptable," he said.

Hoelscher pointed out that representatives from all parts of southern Illinois testified at a hearing in December 1966 in Springfield with a unified request for a substantial medical faculty at SIU-Southernmost campus.

"I doubt," Hoelscher continued, "that any substantial interest in such facilities would develop from this position by the recommendation to construct a medical school at SIU Carbondale to produce 50 med-

Local 'Slag' Artist Has Exhibit at SIU-SW Campus

CARL TOWNZEN
Slag Sculptor

Carl Townzen, who developed the art of slag sculptures as a hobby, currently has an exhibit of 60 items on display at the student center at SIU-SW campus and will give a demonstration of "slag art" at 1 p.m. Thursday, followed by a reception.

Townzen, who lives at 1920 Harris street, Madison, and works for the Granite City Steel Co., had his first exhibit in 1966 in the lobby of the First National Bank.

His show at SIU-SW features "Slag Art Pictures," "Slag Art Sculptures," "Welded B-52 Trees" and "Welded Cobras."

"I have been at work on this type of art for about two years," Townzen told the Press-Record. "At first it was just as a hobby. After I noticed the public's interest in my exhibits and formed on ingots metal and forged on iron, I will reach him."

"There is real beauty in the lacey and intricate patterns, I went into the sculpture type after being advised by an artist friend at the mill and after

Says Program Insufficient

"The current need is to double the number of available physicians. In ten years we will have 100,000 population. This 50 medical graduates a year proposed to be graduated from Carbondale will barely provide replacement for the normal attrition of our existing medical staffs, and can never assist southern Illinois in catching up to its critical need in physicians."

Dr. Delroy Morris, SIU president, decried the medical and dental education problem "urgent from the standpoint of time" and told the board what was done to date in the Board of Higher Education and the implementation of the legislature may be. Southern Illinois University will have rapidly as possible, consistent with the caution for quality.

Members of the State Board of Higher Education at the hearing were Edward E. Lindsay of Decatur, Mrs. August C. Hershey of Alton, and Dr. Norris L. Brooks of Urbana.

'Exceptional Children Week' Being Observed

"Exceptional Children's Week" is being observed this week throughout Illinois, and a banquet for the local area is to be held Thursday at Lockhaven Country Club, Alton, by Lewis and Clark Chapter 8 of the Illinois Council for Exceptional Children.

"Exceptional" means children who need special planning to attain full educational or vocational potential.

In Illinois, there are programs or services for exceptional children who are blind, partially deaf, partially handicapped, and also available are speech correction, physical and occupational therapy, psychological services and rehabilitative services.

Jas. Tanner Promoted Spec. Four in Vietnam

James Tanner, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Tanner Jr., 6 Eastgate drive, recently was promoted to Specialist Fourth Class while serving with the 196th Light Infantry Brigade in South Vietnam.

Prior to enlisting in the Army last August, SP4 Tanner was employed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. He is a 1966 graduate of Granite City high school.

As combat infantryman, the soldier's unit is presently deployed in the coastal area, about 15 miles from the North-South demilitarized zone. Previously, his outfit was assigned patrolling in the Central Highlands region.

In a recent letter home, SP4 Tanner favorably compares the terrain where his platoon is now operating to the former area, particularly noting that the absence of mountains makes daily patrol work less hazardous. He also said that a nearby river permits patrols to keep themselves clean for the first time since he arrived in Vietnam three months ago. "We even enjoy a brief swim each day," he added.

Of interest to persons mailing packages to servicemen in Vietnam, the local youth notes in his letter that any food item should be securely packed in an airtight container to prevent moisture from ruining the contents. He said powdered milk, coffee and sugar are especially welcomed gifts.

Retention Ceremonies Honor Lewis Bouwman

Lewis G. Bouwman, 3100 Wayne, was recently honored at retirement ceremonies held at the U. S. Army Mobility Equipment Command headquarters, 4300 Goodfellow blvd., St. Louis.

A maintenance equipment specialist (marine) in the command's Directorate of Maintenance, the retiree was presented a Certificate of Service in recognition of 20 years of federal service by Col. J. L. Ramos, director of maintenance.

Bouwman served 25 years in the U. S. Navy as chief ship fitter. Following retirement from the service, he was called back to active duty during the Korean War. He also served in a combat assignment with the Navy as an inspector of naval material under the Supervisor of Ship Building.

The retiree became a Department of the Army employee in the mid-1950s and has held his present position since 1964. He and his wife and two children are currently residing in Granite City since 1954.

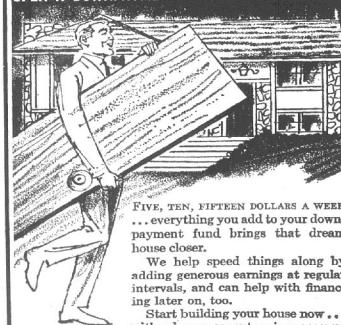

Bouwman currently is serving as vice-president of the Fleet Reserve Association, of which he is a past president.

Roger Hoover Assigned At Navy Hq. in London

When Communication Technician Third Class Roger Q. Hoover II, of 2915 Marshellawn, joined the Navy he had high hopes of seeing the world. He had a good start, serving in Great Lakes, Ill., Bainbridge, Md., and the British Isles, and visiting France and Germany.

Now Petty Officer Hoover is in London, England, attached to the headquarters of Admiral John S. McCain, Jr., Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Naval Forces Europe. He has been assigned to the headquarter's Naval Security Group Detachment since September 1966.

The Naval Forces Europe commandant comes from Greenland across Europe and North Africa to the Indian Ocean. It includes the ships of the U. S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean and Navy shore establishments throughout Europe and North Africa.

Living in the Ealing area of suburban London, the local serviceman rides the "tube," or subway, to work each day, along with eight million other Londoners.

He commented that when he was assigned to Britain, he expected to learn English quickly. Now he says, "This is not completely true. If you are looking for a drug store, you must ask for a 'chemist' and you better remember to ask for 'gasoline' if you want to buy gasoline."

Hoover added, "Of course our language is basically the same, you just have to know the British equivalents."

A Granite City high school graduate, Petty Officer Hoover is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Q. Hoover of Granite City.

Illinois in 1818--Stage Coaches Ended Isolation of Some Areas

(From the files of the Granite City Press-Record)

The early Illinois residents found it difficult to get mail or to travel from place to place because there were no established transportation facilities.

Mail arrived at Kaskaskia at irregular intervals, and sometimes the Kaskaskia newspapers worked under great difficulties.

For instance, on April 20, 1817, this notice appeared in the Kaskaskia Intelligencer:

"We regret that our readers are again compelled to take hold of a barren paper, but the floods which have been so unseasonably and unexpectedly poured upon us of late have prevented the usual arrival of the eastern mails. Three weeks have expired since we have had a mail."

But on April 20, 1818, a new era began. On that date, James Warden of Kaskaskia announced in the Kaskaskia papers that he had established a stage coach service from Kaskaskia to St. Louis.

His announcement stated that "he can accommodate four stage passengers each trip he makes with the mail to St. Louis.

He starts from Kaskaskia at 6 a.m. every morning and arrives at St. Louis the next day, Monday, at 2 p.m.

"Returning, he leaves St. Louis every Tuesday morning and arrives at Kaskaskia the ensuing evening. Fare--$4.00 each passenger, payable in advance."

This marked the beginning of regular stage service in Illinois.

But with the service, travel was irregular and difficult.

Marine facilities were so poor that it was almost impossible to market products of the land. In fact, little effort was made to sell corn and wheat, although corn frequently brought as high as 75 cents to $1.

One young farmer along the river could find a ready market.

"Corn is worth in this settlement 75 cents. In other places around us, they have had the conscience to take a dollar per bushel. I do not think we can afford enough in the country to supply the market for rapid settlement."

Yet, this farmer was concerned not with raising for the market, but only for his own use. "Our corn," he continued, "we must not neglect under the penalty of starving."

The attitude of this man seems to have been a prevalent one at that time. Each and all raised produce, not primarily to sell, but to save themselves from being obliged to buy.

Animals Signal With Chemicals

(American Institute of Biological Sciences)

Animals use chemicals as a defense, an attractant, and to communicate with their environment. As such, they are called semiochemicals.

Professor Thomas Eisner of the Cornell University's Division of Biological Sciences and the New York State College of Agriculture has reported that many organisms receive and give signals by means of chemicals.

He said that communication through sight, sound or touch has been studied previously, but little study has been made of chemical signals that unrelated species use to communicate.

When a squirrel sprays his disagreeable chemical, Dr. Eisner said, he is telling his adversary to "take off." This is a defense used by many animals to detect signals from plants through their fragrance or disagreeable odor and respond accordingly.

Some plants, including certain ferns and evergreens, produce compounds related to insect hormones. These compounds are presumed to prevent plant-eating insects from the development of insects that feed on them.

Also, Dr. Eisner relates certain plant products released from being excreted out by other plants by releasing volatile compounds that wash into the ground around them, inhibiting the growth of their competitors.

High-Protein Oats

Scientists are trying to develop a high-protein species of oats by crossing wild oats with cultivated oats. Wild oats have been studied, but much remains to be done.

Even if Las Vegas doesn't turn you on, and the only market you're familiar with is the corner grocery, you still play the odds when you're at work. The game you could play for keeps?

What are your chances of suffering serious injury... or even death... at work? If you're a logger, your chances of escaping an accident on the job are not so good. If you're a banker, they're extremely good.

As a banker, you can expect 217 accident-free years on the job, in other words, you could work five lifetimes without experiencing disability injury--if Bonnie and Clyde don't appear at your window.

As a logger, however, the statistics give you only eight years before being killed by an occupational accident. A coal miner has 11 years.

If you are a "grease monkey" working on automobiles, your odds run out in just nine years. You don't have to go for 37 years before having an on-the-job mishap or major proportion--on the average.

In testifying before the congressional Safety and Health Act of 1968, Labor Secretary

Bernard F. Wirtz declared:

"Today's industrial casualty list like yesterday's and tomorrow's, week after month after month, is 55 deaths, 8,900 injuries, 27,200 injured."

The figures for the year will be 14,000 to 15,000 dead, over two million disabled, over seven million injured.

The Labor Secretary urged

a law which would establish enforceable federal safety and health standards throughout the country. He also proposed a commission to protect workers, and would provide for information gathering, research and training programs on work accidents and disabilities.

information gathering, research and training programs on work accidents and disabilities.

Check the following chart. If you're a logger, your chances of escaping an accident on the job are not so good.

If you're a banker, they're extremely good.

As a logger, however, the statistics give you only eight years before being killed by an occupational accident. A coal miner has 11 years.

If you are a "grease monkey,"

working on automobiles,

your odds run out in just nine years. You don't have to go for 37 years before having an on-the-job mishap or major proportion--on the average.

In testifying before the proposed Congressional Safety and Health

Act of 1968, Labor Secretary

Bernard F. Wirtz declared:

"Today's industrial casualty list like yesterday's and tomorrow's, week after month after month, is 55 deaths, 8,900 injuries, 27,200 injured."

The figures for the year will be 14,000 to 15,000 dead, over two million disabled, over seven million injured.

The Labor Secretary urged

a law which would establish enforceable federal safety and health standards throughout the country. He also proposed a commission to protect workers, and would provide for information gathering, research and training programs on work accidents and disabilities.

Optimists Install Two; Hear Talk on Delinquency

Granite City Optimists held installation ceremonies for two new club members and heard an SIU-SW professor of psychology discuss family contribution to juvenile delinquency at a luncheon meeting Thursday in the YMCA.

Gene H. Sternberg, Optimist International president-elect, served as installing officer for Robert E. Geller, an administrative officer of Specialized Services, and Tom M. Kish, president of E. J. Miller Real Estate and Insurance Co.

Sternberg was assisted by E. E. Veihl Jr., who explained the traditions and customs of the Optimist organization, and Frank R. Rea, who presented the newcomers with membership certificates and other material.

Raymond E. Troyer, Optimist president, officially welcomed the pair with a traditional handclasp. Twenty-six attended, including Police Sgt. Joseph A. MacMillan Jr.

John Dreeves, program chairman, introduced the speaker, Dr. Robert Russo, a professor of social psychology at Northern Illinois University - Southwestern campus, who asserted there is no prescribed method of handling a potential juvenile delinquent, as each youngster reacts differently to various situations.

Dr. Russo illustrated his point by informing several members of the audience that one was to be selected to take his place at the regional competition in October for the club. He noted the dissimilar reaction in each individual so informed - one appeared apprehensive, another eager and willing to participate, while others thought of skipping before a group.

This is exactly the same type of diverse reaction found in juveniles confronted with situations and alternatives, Dr. Russo pointed out. Achievement-motivation in early life is the key, he said.

A young person must have an attractive goal, with some degree of difficulty, and progress toward this goal must be observed for clues indicating whether they are succeeding or failing . . . if they need encouragement or re-direction, said Dr. Russo.

The youth who is the perfect model boy throughout his grade and high school years, who attends church, is a good athlete and a true conformist to good behaviour, will probably find little difficulty in work situations, the professor commented. His life, to the point of young manhood, has been interested and well directed. When he loses his childhood controllers, usually his parents, he immediately runs into problems he cannot handle, unless he is a well-balanced, achievement-motivated individual.

Dr. Troyer announced a board of directors meeting will be held at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Chamber of Commerce conference room. Plans currently are being made by the club for an installation dinner party later this month and for members to attend the regional competition in October. Dates set for May 17 and 18, at Fischer's Restaurant, Belleville.

Steve Stagner, a Coolidge junior high school student and winner of the Optimist International contest, will be among the candidates competing in the regional contest May 17, with the winner of this event advancing to the district finals the following day.

ABOUT THIS QUESTION:

"I don't know of a friend who hasn't lost an expensive ring, watch, or other jewelry, or had it stolen or vulnerable as jewelry. Is it true that a $50 premium will cover $1000 in jewelry for three years against loss, theft, or damage?"

The hostesses used a yellow and white color theme. The tables were decorated with a centerpiece of yellow and white daisies with double candles at each end. The individual tables carried out the daisy theme in a fan effect, with a small doll attached to the nut cups.

Used Earlier Rate

Because St. Clair county officials were so late in past years in completing assessment figures, frequently settling their own tax books until fall, Miss Hotz has been completing Quad-City tax books in early spring by using the levee district rates as a base, rather than waiting for the county to complete its assessment.

Official 1967 valuation figures for the levee district in St. Clair county show the value in many years in time to be included on a current basis in Madison county tax extensions—show the usual pattern of rising assessments in Madison county and declining valuations in St. Clair county.

While St. Clair county tax officials have established a levee district tax rate of 45 cents per $100 assessed valuation for the 1967 tax year, Madison county will apply a rate of 41.5 cents as an adjustment rate on a daily basis to a current valuation. Miss Hotz adopted this system after obtaining a legal opinion that it was permissible.

Early assessment of the St. Clair county area by the levee district this year will allow Madison county to "catch up" to the current levee district rate as a base for valuation figures, Miss Hotz said.

Increased taxes for levee district purposes are seen in a new 1967 valuation of $242,930-$39 for Madison county, up $215,532 over the 1966 assessment of $235,614,839.

These figures make a total assessment of $242,930 for the levee district, while the total property valuation is $279,225-$39, or $239,786, below the 1966 assessment of $299,502,193.

These figures make a total assessment of $242,930 for the levee district, the 1967 valuation has been set at $279,225-$39, or $239,786, below the 1966 total value of $308 millions.

Madison Values Rise

This put 40% of the levee district back in the levee district in 1968. The Madison county valuation went up $4 million to $220 million, and St. Clair county dropped $4 millions to a $308 million total.

For the 1967 tax year, the Madison county value went up $4 million to $224 million and the St. Clair value dropped again this year by $2 million to $306 million.

The great majority of work done by the levee district lies within St. Clair county with its vast network of drainage canals, channels and pumping stations.

It is estimated that 88% to 90% of levee users in the area is hired by St. Clair county.

Most of its work goes to East St. Louis and St. Clair county contractors and the majority of its financials is handled mainly by the St. Clair county portion of the district.

In 1957, the Madison county valuation within the levee district amounted to $161 million. The cost of the agency was $331 million—a spread of $161 millions between the two areas. At that time, Madison county had paid 34% of its levee district taxes.

A major change in assessment figures occurred in 1958 when the Madison county part of the agency dropped $5 million to $223 millions, and the St. Clair county assessment dropped $16 millions to $315 millions. Thus Madison county taxpayers paid 41% of the 1958 taxes, up 7% over their tax charges of the 1956 and 1957 tax years.

Valuation of levee districts areas in the two counties jockey back and forth for several years. In 1968 both countries showed decreases in property values, Madison county dropping $1 million to a total of $216 millions, but St. Clair county dropped $13 millions to a total of $308 millions.
